BY FRANK H. SIMONDS. Washington, D. C., May 11 .- (Spe cial.)-With the arrival of the Rus sian answer to the ultimatum, Lloyd George is brought to the supreme crisis. He has now to choose between Russia and France, and the choice is further complicated by the fact that in choosing Russia he will inevitably have to substitute a German for French partnership. He has, how ever, to make the decision, for his whole political career is at stake and his position not too remotely suggests

It is essential to remember in the first place that the Genoa conference was, in its origin, an electoral device for George, who had calculated in January that a general election in ain, based upon success in the Washington conference, what was then resarded as success in the Irish prob-lem, and the promise of a European settlement, would insure a return of a house of commons which would sup-

BILL INTRODUCED

Chairman Norris Sponsors Senate Measure Providing Semi-Government Corporation to Run

ANOTHER PRIVATE BID SENT TO COMMITTEE

Baltimore Engineer Asks Hearing When He Submits Tentative Proposal for Lease of Plant.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, May 11 .- Four develpments in congressional consideration of proposals for developing the Muscle Shoals, Ala., nitrate and power projects occurred today in the senate agriculture and house military committees and on the senate floor.

Chairman Norris, Nebraska, of the senate committee, introduced a bill providing for a semi-government corporation to take over and operate the nitrate and power projects for fifty years. The measure was drafted by James T. Lloyd, former representative from Missouri, and submitted by J. H. Levering, a consulting engineer of Los Angeles, Cal., as a modification of the bill Senator Norris recently in-

The Nebraska senator also made public a tentative proposal received from L. Stern, a Baltimore, Md., consulting engineer, and manufacturer of chemical products. Mr. Stern's letter of transmission requested the committee to hear him at his convenience and said the formal tender would be made later, the committee deciding informally to accede to the request and grant Mr. Stern a hearing. Profits to U. S.

The tentative offer of Mr. Stern pro vided for the operation of the nitrate and power projects for a period of of years that might be determ upon. It further stated that all exincurred by the governm Muscle Shoals would be paid to it at the rate of 2 per cent annually and contained a provision by which the government would receive 6D per cent of all net profits made during the operation, with the lessees retaining 40 per cent.

In the house committee an agree ment was reached by which any lesse of the shoals properties would be com pelled to manufacture finished fertiizers whether at a profit or loss throughout the term of his operations, whether it be fifty or one hundred years. An amendment to this effect is formulating for the house in connection with its report on the various roposals it has investigated.

Opinions Differ.
Wide differences of opinion are unerstood to prevail in the committee ver the provisions of the offer madby Henry Ford which are being discussed as the basis for the measure ander construction. It was believed ssible that the committeem be divided into three factions when the discussions were ended and as many different recomme would be made to the house.

The senate agriculture body heard njamin C. Marsh, managing directo of the farmers' national council, testify today. He said the council was opposed to the Ford proposal or any ther that deprived the government ontrol and operation of the projects at Muscle Shoals.

The bill introduced recently by Sen ator Norris, the witness believes, was fundamentally sound and he recomnended that legislation of a similar sort be enacted.

The bill drafted by Mr. Lloyd fol lowed the description which the agri-culture committee heard yesterday in eral language. It would create a $5,000,000 corporation, headed by seven directors to be appointed by the president, three being officials of the war, treasury and agriculture depart-

In the end, the Belgians quits cleverly pinned the issue down to the question of the recognition of private property. If Russia would not restore property seized in the revolution, if Russia still adhered to the communistic idea, then Belgium would nave none of the proposed settlement. To this France agreed, and Mr. Hughes, speaking in Washington, gave clear indication that America, while remaining aloof, assented in principle. Meantime, the maneuver to isolate France had not wholly succeeded. In Genoa, Benes, the ablest statesman present, and the whole little entente group plainly sided with France. So, despite some concealment, did Poland. Germany was early excluded from the debate over Russia, and Britain was left with only Italy as a sure ally. Even Japan, as the discussion proceeded, came down on the French

Russia's Price.

Meantime, Russia continued to complicate the situation by talking as a victor. Her representatives, all in avoiding compliance with the terms of western nations, estimated not by millions but by billions, and not in goods, but in gold, the price that the western pations must pay for a wholly shadowy assent on the Russian part to the renewal of relations.

It is only by recognizing the political phase, the mensing of Genon to Lloyd George in terms of home politics that much which has happened can be understood. The violent denunciation of France by all the Georgian press, the continuous and consistent effort to present France as responsible for impending failure, this is no more than the preparation for the coming election at home. The sudden passionate attack upon Wickham Steed, editor of The London Times, who, with all the other Northeliffe representatives, has opposed the Georgian tactics, has precisely the same origin.

Georgian tactics, has precisely the same origin.

That Genoa has failed in any larger achievement needs no proof now. It has promoted publicly hostilities which were at least latent before. Despite all camouflage, it has wrecked the Anglo-French entente for the period of Lloyd George's premiership, at the very least. It has given Russia the position of a conqueror and treated the world to the rather disturbing spectacle of many of the statesmen of western Europe, whose denunciation of Lenin and Trotzky in the past has known no limit, humbly, hat in hand, pleading that Russians.

Came as Surprise.

Although the letter withdrawing the nomination came from Goldstein, it is common talk around the capito: today that the communication was not voluntarily given, but that representatives of the administration had secretly requested the letter in the hope of preventing further criticism from the senate. It has been generally conceded ever since Goldstein's name was first presented to the upper branch for confirmation that his nomination would be rejected, and this opposition came from democrats and republicans alike.

While the declination of Goldstein came as a complete surprise to some

While the declination of Goldstein came as a complete surprise to some members of the senate, it is known that republicans have had frequent conferences on the subject, trying to determine the best way out of the affair. And to those who were not taken into the confidence of the star chamber meetings the surprise was not an unwelcome one from the republican point of view.

Even the senators who favored confirmation did not seem to be at all displeased by the sudden clearing up of what was admitted to be an embarrassing situation.

More Campaign Munition.

The whole incident, coming as it does on the same day Attorney-Gencral Daugherty made his announcement with reference to senatorial campaign expenditures, is slated to provide excellent material for democrats in the fall elections. It will be pointed out as a direct approvately the Harding administration of "money for political offices," and the fact that republicans have attempted to cover the affair up by having Goldstein withdraw his name is not scheduled to help matters Eny. Official sanction of the tactics used in this and the Newberry case has been made, it is claimed, and recent action by party leaders has only acted to make an admission of it all.

There is little doubt at the capital More Campaign Munition.

There is little doubt at the capital but that Goldstein would have been rejected if his nomination had been continued, as there is enough democratic opposition known which would have been sufficient.

On the whole, republican members of the senate coming up for re-election this year, are said to be jubilant over the present outcome, as a vote either way would have affected their standing with the party.

These voting for confirmation standing with the party.

Those voting for confirmation would have been confronted with the "corrupt practices in politics" issue, while those against confirmation would have lent influence to the current criticism of the majority party by causing a split in the republican ranks, all of which would be considered good corroborative evidence of democratic contentions.

Negro Migration TO AUTO OWNERS To North Called Danger to Race

That the migration of negroes from southern states into the north and from rural sections of the south into the larger cities of the south has been fraught with great danger to the health of the race, was the statement made by Franklin O. Nichols, of New traught with great danger to the heaith of the race, was the statement made by Franklin O. Nichols, of New York city, associate director of the national health council, speaking before the conference of Negro City Workers of the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday at Central Avenue M. E. church.

Dr. Nichols pointed out among other interesting satistics that the death toll among negroes between the ages of 10 and 14 years is eleven times the rate among white children of the same age. Lack of proper information regarding diet. sanitation, simple rules of health, fear of the physician and the hospital, change of mode of life by moving from south to north, from country to city, all, he said, contributed toward this condition. He urged the pastors to open in their churches classes for the study of sex psychology and sanitation.

Dr. Fletcher Penn, physician and surgeon of Atlanta, spoke along the same line and urged the importance of the church's entrance into this aphere of social welfare activity.

The morning's program was given ever almost entirely to a consideration of conditions faced by the negro in entering northern cities, where they live in the poorest sections and have not adequate housing or recreational or church surroundings. The speakers, besides Drs. Nichols and Penn, included Professor Pezavia O'Connell, of Morgan college, Baltimore, and Dr. G. R. Bryant, of Chicago.

An interesting speaker at the morning session was Dr. Edgar J. Helms, founder of the famous Goodwill industries, at Boston, where several hundred men and women, unable to make their living because of physical handi-tries, at Boston, where several hundred men and women, unable to make their living because of physical handicaps, have been taught trades and redeemed for lives of usefulness. Dr. Helms is now busily engaged in establishing similar Goodwill industries for the Methodist Episcopal church in other cities, and he said he hoped to see one established in Atlanta in the near future.

Various methods by which the church can promote inter-racial co-operation was discussed during the afternoon session by Dr. J. N. C. Coggins, superintendent of colored work for the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, Washington, D. C., and by Rev. D. L. Morgan, of Meridian, Miss,

TARIFF AND THE SOUTH. In view of the obvious certainty that a high tariff bill will be passed by the republican congress and put into operation either before or soon after the 1922 elections, despite all that the demo crats might be able to do to pre vent it, let us hope that the application of its "protection" will be general to the industries of the whole country, and that it will not be in effect a sectional measure As. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram truthfully said in a recent editorial, which we reproduce elsewhere upon this page, "the big fact that faces us, and which can not be dodged, is that the present congress is going to pass a protective tariff bill;" and the Texas newspaper takes the very logical position that if, in their zeal to promote the theory of free trade, the result will have been attained. "Democratic representatives in ngress." says The Star-Telegram, solation to the producers of the south if the bill is a one-sided and sectional measure, giving the east a big advantage and placing the measure to the extent of excluding strictly southern products and authern industries from its proective influence the south will suf-materially and no possible good peratic south and southern welfare. this is expressive of an altogether 100th anniversary of the event reasonable and common-sense at which has revolutionized interna titude toward the pending tariff tional trade.

Our Texas contemporary goes on to say that while the democratic members of the house and senate may be, and doubtless are, "poweriess to prevent" the enactment of the tariff bill, "they are not powerless to obtain protection for the products of Texas and the south" on a parity with the measare of protection to be thrown round the products of the north, east and west, and that "if the bill is a one-sided affair the democratic members who keep their records straight' will be directly responsi ble for it." The point of the whole matter. from the standpoint of southern prosperity and common-sense, is that while the democratic south is raditionally opposed to the principle of so-called "protection," there s nothing to be gained by stubborn sition to a tariff bill the enactment of which, in one form or mother, is a foregone conclusion and a certainty.

On the other hand, much may be gained in the way of an equitable distribution of the promised protection" by yielding to the in-svitable and making the best of it. That is to say, so long as enactat of an undemogratic high prore tariff bill apparently is ould be placed on an even with those of the rest of criminated against and deprived of whatever special benefits the industries of the country may derive from it?

Why should southern industries be made to suffer discrimination simply because southern congress men and senators are desirous of keeping their records straight?

Winfield Scott Hancock, democratic nominee for the presidency in 1880, said in one of the campaign speeches that the tariff was a "local issue," or words to that effect.

That statement was ridiculed Hancock was right—the tariff is "local," according to the particular products and industries of a given locality.

And in the same way and to a proportionately greater.

roportionately greater extent it may be made sectional.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that our representatives in congress will not let their opposition to the protective tariff principle drive them to such an extreme as to alienate the south from the provisions of the bill that is to be enacted by the republican majority despite democratic opposition to it in principle.

A SPLENDID PURPOSE.

Georgia's great seaport city, Saannah, the mother port of ocean team navigation, proposes an international exposition for the pur pose of commemorating the event which changed the course of human history.

From Noah down to Colonel Scarborough, a citizen of Georgia. no ship had ever challenged Neptune by attemping to cross the oceans otherwise than by sail. The rilliant idea of crossing with a ship propelled by steam was conceived in the mind of this distinguished Georgian, and its practicability courageously demonstrated by him.

His ship, the Savannah, was built in New York, and found its way to Savannah by hugging the shore and utilizing, wherever practical, inland water routes. It was in May, 1819, that a courageous crew cleared the Savannah, from the port of Savannah, for the port of St. Petersburg, Russia, via Liv-

The Real Tariff Question

(From The Fort Worth, Texas, Star-Telegram.)

The question which is being raised by the Southern Tariff conference is any sense a political or partisan one. It is not even a question of protection or free trade. It does not foreshadow a shift in Texas to the republica: column, it does not even mean a growth of "protection sentiment" in Texas or in the south. It is simply the very practical question of whether the products of other sections of the country are to receive the benefits of a protective tariff and the products of Texas and the south be placed at a decided disadvantage by being denied such protection. any sense a political or partisan one

The big fact that faces us and which can not be dodged, is that the present congress is going to pass a protective tariff bill. Dem come tack home and tell their con-stituents that they "kept the faith of the fathers" and voted against that bill will give little consolation to the producers of the south and of Texas if the bill is a one-sided of Texas if the bill is a one-sided and sectional measure, giving the east a big advantage and placing Texas and the south at a decided disadvantage. The bill is going to be passed. The democratic members who are going to vote against it will admit that right now. They will say that they are "powerless to prevent it." But they are not powerless to obtain protection for the products of Texas and the south, if the bill is a one-sided affair the democratic members who "keep their records straight" will be directly responsible for it.

Changes Made.

Changes Made. Mr. Watkins presented his chartet in January with the request that it lie on the table for several months in order that the public might have an opportunity to make suggestions. In making these changes members of the Parent-Teacher asso-ciation, members of the board of edumembers of the Parent-Teacher asso-ciation, members of the board of edu-cation and other school authorities of national prominence were consulted by a committee from the Atlanta League of Women Voters, and suggestions from all were written into the char-ter. The 30 per cent provision has been criticized as too much to give the schools, as that munificent sum (4 per cent more than the other charters give) given to the education of our children would cripple the other departments of our city government. It is to be supposed that advocates of the composite charter throw out this criticism because they can find no other more serious objection to the Watkins-Atlanta plan. As to crippling the other departments, advocates of the Watkins-Atlanta plan know that this will not be done. Under the city manager form of government so much of the city's money will be saved that the 4 per cent extra given to the the 4 per cent extra given to the schools will not for a moment be noticed, and it is expected that within ticed, and it is expected that within a short time more than the 30 per cent can be given.

The provision that teachers shall not be dismissed without cause after two years of service has been attacked on the theory that it cannot be determined whether a teacher will make good within two years, and that the limit of five years set by the composite charter is the ideal time. As teachers can always be dismissed for cause under the Watkins plan, why should they be at the mercy of an ar-bitrary ruling for five long years? If the beard of education is not going to the board of education is not going to discover a bad teacher within five years the education of thousands of our children will be ruined, as five years in a child's school life is a large part of the whole.

But they want to apprise the whole world of the accomplishment, and incidentally to try to make the other fellow feel like a pig because he doeant' devote most of his leisure to wallowing in the bath tub. One of my associates takes three baths a day—at least that is her frequent boast—and another disgraces the community and imperils his own hygenic existence by indulging fn but two a day, I may remark entre nous that both of these fairly daft bathers were brought up, and brought up well, in a village where no bath tubs were known and where mother's wash tubs did yeoman service Saturday nights. But I'll swear that my two cleanly associates tell me an average of 2 1-2 times a day how often they bathe, so that I practically have about 19 mental or imaginary baths a week. I am clean sick of it, I can assure you that my own prayers of gratitude will asseind with those of thousands of other sufferers in your behalf for your efforts to discourage this bathing in public."

Choate Composite Plan

The present charter has a board o ducation of five members elected by he people, with the mayor and chair-nen of the school committee of council as ex-efficio members. This board has complete charge and control of the school department. It elects the su-perintendent, principals, supervisors and teachers. It expends the money

The Watkins charter has a board of education of five members elected by the people, without ex-officio members. This board has complete charge and control of the school department, as in the present charter. It expends the school funds.

Differences Pointed Out. The present charter gives 26 per cent of the city's entire revenue to the schools, plus non-resident tuition fees, plus the state appropriation. The composite charter gives to the schools identically the same as the schools identically the same as present charter.

The Watkins charter gives to the schools 30 per cent of the city's entire revenue, plus non-resident tuition fees, plus the state appropriation.

Why does the Watkins charter give 30 per cent? To catch votes. To play politics with the schools. To demagogue the people. Mr. Watkins started with 30 per cent excluding water works receipts. These are nearwater works receipts. These ly $1,000,000 per year. hanged his charter so as to include water receipts. And now some Watkins charter speakers are smugly tel other departments to fatten the schools. We must have policemen, and pay them a living wage. And firemen. And employees in all other departments. The whole public service cannot be crippled for the sake of the schools.

The composite charter requires the board of education to provide free books in all city schols within three years. This provision was copied from the composite charter into the Watkins charter, after the composite charter had been published. The present charter contains no such provision.

The composite charter requires all teachers who have rendered five years of continuous service to be placed on a permanent teachers roll, where they will not be subject to re-election once each year, as they are at present. This provision was likewise lifted from the composite charter into the Watkins charter, but was changed to provide that teachers should be placed on the permanent roll after two years of continuous service.

Such a rule inevitably would tend to throw out potentially good teachers, before they were able to demonstrate their fitness; on the other hand, to load the permanent rell with numerous incompetent. nent roll with numerous incompetent

The composite charter committee did not stab blindly at this matter, thought. It consulted educational authorities, without thought. It consulted to highest educational authorities, who advised five years. Two years may sound better to the demagozue, but our schools are too vital to be made the victim of demagozic politics.

Present Charter Plan Furnished Constitution by headquarte of present charter supporters.

The school department in the estination of many people is the most mportant department of the city govrament. Some highly technical auchorities will say that our health department is the most important, and that the first duty of all municipal government is to guard and preserve the public health. Still other authorities will claim that the police department is the most important waat avails it, they will say, if our in their homes, from burgiars and thieves and highwaymen? The efforcement of law they will claim the first duty of all government.

But promoty a majority of people, ertainly an of the people connected with the school department, will still contend that this is the most important of all the city departments.

Let us present a few figures show-our present charter. Going back for five years, the yearly expenditures for the school department in found figares have been as follows

1917 $ 782,000 912,000 1919 1920 1,511,000 1921 1,701,000 For 1922 the apportionment for schools is $1.852.000 for the year. Sond money is not included in this apportionment for lozz, this apportionment for maintenance stone. The bond money can only be used for buildings, land and equipment, and the above apportionment for 1922 is It should be borne in hind that the city, in addition to this very large apportionment for the mainten-ance of our school system, must also meet the interest and sinking fund each year on the school bonds. When the total amount of $4,000,000 for the chools is issued the annual payments as stated on these school box amount to about $300,000, this amount, however, gradually decreasing as the bonds are retired. No other department of the city govern-ment has been treated with such lib-erality as the school department, and the above figures ought to prove to any impartial and unprejudiced mine that under the present form of govern-ment the schools will always be ade-quately and generously provided for. What the present form of government has done for the schools is known to all, and it might be well for the school people to consider whether it

System Provided

Let us now make a brief reference to the system of administration, as provided in the present charter with the proposed amendments.

We propose that the board of education shall comprise twelve members, one from each of the twelve wards, the new twelfth ward being included so as to take care of the Kirkwood territory, these wearbars to be electronic. so as to take care of the Kirkwood territory, these members to be elected by the people, each ward nominating in the primary its own member. We further propose that there shall be no ex-officio members, thus separating the school board from the mayor and council. We insist that mayor and council. We insist that every ward and every section shall be represented in the administration of our great school system. Such would never be the case with the small board, or a large board for that matter, elected from the city at large. This "city at large", idea would mean that certain sections would never have direct representation on the school direct representation on the school board, and we insist that this is a wrong principle and not conducive to the wisest administration or the best results.

The splendid men and women connected with our public school system are among our most intelligent and are among our most intelligent and patriotic citizens, and the afforts of some of these new charter advocates and the various methods they have used, to becloud the issue and to create confusion as to the facts, ought to be rebuked when the ballots are cast next Tuesday.

ON LIBERIA LOAN Arrests Likely

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON. Washington, May 11.-(By Consti-

Washington, May 11.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Speaking before the house during consideration of the bill authorizing a loan of $5,000,000 to the republic of Liberia, kepresentative Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, severely criticized republicans for advocating the measure, charging that the legislation set a dangerous precedent and that there is no excuse for congress extending loans of the kind at this time.

The bill, which passed, was opposed by democratic members of the house, headed by Representative Crisp, a member of the ways and means committee, who in behalf of the minority members of the committee filed a report against the measure. The Georgia delegation in a body voted against the legislation.

In leading the fight for the opposigia delegation in a body voted against the legislation.

In leading the fight for the opposition, Judge Crisp declared the government of the United States was neither legally or morally bound to negotiate a loan with the republic of Liberia, which republicans claimed was authorized under the third liberty loan act. Discussing the history of the mill, Mr. Crisp spoke in part as follows:

Attacks Arguments. Attacks Arguments.

Attacks Arguments.

"It is conceded that there is now no legal authority for the United States to make this loan. Gentlemen contend that we are morally obligated to make it, and the record will show that they base it on three contentions. One of them is, they say, that the United States is historically interested in Liberia because some negroes from the United States first went there and settled it. Then they say we are obligated because of business relations and business reasons; and then thirdly, they say we are obligated because President Wilson set apart this credit.

"The government of the United States had nothing to do with this colonization of Liberia or those people going there, and so no intelligent man can contend that the United States is obligated to make this loan on account of that colonization scheme started in 1821, over 100 years ago.

on account of that colonization scheme started in 1821, over 100 years ago. Now as to the business proposition, netwithstauding our historical interest and the so-called friendship existing between Liberia and the United States, the record shows that 85 per cent of the commerce of Liberia was with Carrency the other 15 per cent is with of the commerce of Liberia was with Germany, the other 15 per cent is with other countries than America, and the record does not show where we have even 1 per cent of the business of Liberia. So that contention must Denies Moral Obligation.

"Is this government morally obligated because of this credit? I believe that every honest man must keep every moral and every legal obligation, and I believe every government must act likewise; and if I believe the United States was morally committed to make this loan I would vote for it. But I do not believe it.

"The record will show that when the proposition to make Liberia a loan came up before the treasury department that department doubted its authority to make a credit to Liberia under the liberty loan, act, and they were proceeding to ask the attorney-general for a legal opinion when President Wilson said that he approved of the loan, and so the credit was given, but it was expressly stated it was not to be available until a contract between the two parties regarding same was entered into. No contract based on this credit has been made up to this good hour.

No Agreement.

No Agreement. No Agreement.

"Mr. Chairman, it is a well accepted legal maxim that no contract is binding until the minds of all the contracting parties unite and agree, and that has never been done up to this good hour on the credit set apart by President Wilson on September 12, but that credit has been expressly withdrawn and the Liberian government was notified and the contract withdrawn and the Liberian government was notified and the contract which you are today asked to ratify was made in October, 1921, practically three years after the armistice, after President Harding had issued a proclamation that we were at peace with Germany, and it was not ratified by Liberia until January, 1922."

Among other things. Representative Crisp declared that a large portion of the proposed loan would be devoted to satisfying various bonds against the Liberian government held by financial interests of this country, which, he charged, were responsible for republicans favoring the loan. The measure will be sent to the senate within a few days, where a strong democratic opposition is expected.

did the pitching for the Lookouts and had worlds of stuff. His curve ball was breaking nicely, but the Crackers finally succeeded ha finding it long enought to shoot over the necessary tallies.

Mr. Suggs was in good form himself and surrendered but three hits for the five innings he worked. He was in no danger at all until the third, when Wingfield tripled after Stephens had struck out, scoring on a nicely executed squeeze play, Croll going out to Bernsen unassisted. From that time on Suggs was unbeatable. The tying rum resulted from a couple of hits and Third Baseman Stephens' error. George Schmidt was an easy out for the starter, but Chester Schmidt followed with a safe drive to center which netted one bag. Suggs hit a hard grounder down the third base line and Stephens handled it perfectly, only to follow with a wild throw to head Schmidt at second and the Cracker catcher went on to third. BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Now that even the rain gods are throwing their influence toward the Crackers cause, we see no reason why the local pastimers shouldn't get their leads above water within the next few days.

With dark and dangerous clouds hovering over Ponce de Leon yesterday for the first game of the series with the Chattanooga Lookouts, John Left-handed Suggs permitted the visitors to shove across one counter in the third, but his teammates tied the count in their half and put across another in the fourth.

Just as the Crackers were taking their places for the last half of the fifth, rain that had been threatening from the start began descending and the umpire-in-chief, Bulldog Williams, halted festivities. At the end of thirty minutes the battle was salled off and the Crackers had won two games in dizzy succession.

Hard Team to Lick.

Chattanooga is a hard team to lick. The club is hitting much better than it did when the first games of the season were played against Atlanta and this boy Wingfield is a much better pitcher than he was when the Crackers licked him toward the early part of the campaign.

The victory brought Atlanta into seventh place, the Lookouts taking the place that has been occupied for some days by the local outfit. The game did something else. It restored a whole lot of confidence in the Cracker camp and some teams that have been taking Atlanta as easy picking are doomed to disappointment. The team has made a miserable showing to date, but breaking the losing habit is a tough job in baseball. Once it's accomplished a team usually comes in with a string of victories likely to put the outfit back in the running.

Barger and Stewart were released outright and according to the present plans of the management Bedgood will be sent to New Orleans as a player is due the New Orleans club on the James deal.

NEW PURSE FOR RACERS

Announcement has been made at the office of the Southeastern Fair association, sponsors of the national championship motorcycle races which are scheduled for May 20, that a large cash prize will be hung up for the rider who may break the present track record at Lakewood.

The present record is 46 seconds, which has not been touched by any motor rider or automobile driver since Gene Walker established it at the big motorcycle meet held at Lakewod in 1919. Sig Haugdahl holds the auto record on the local oval, having driven his Fiat around the circuit in 47 2-5 seconds, and he failed to lower this mark a few weeks ago when he drove his monster speed creation, a 250-horsepower Wisconsin Special, for a new circuit mark. Walker holds the distinction of having turned a faster mile on the Lakewod track than any other person.

New Purse Atractive. All of the candidates for national championship honors will be offered a trial at the purse that will be hung up for the rider who lowers Gene's sensational mark. This event will be open to all and practically all of the entries have expressed themselves as favorably inclined to make an attempt, which will add considerable interest to the attractive program which is to be staged.

This afternoon Tech will meet Washington and Lee the first of a two game series. Washington and Lee thus far has been beaten only two or three times this season. With the possible exception of Georgetown, Washington and Lee has the best team in the south Atlantie section. They have quite an enviable record to bear out this claim.

They are much stronger this year than last, and have several men of big league caliber. Hisle is the best third baseman in the whole section. Kid clay says that he is the best college third baseman that he ever saw. Therefore, the first baseman, Terry, is also a nifty ball player. He fields beantifully and has a perfect arm. They have without a doubt two of the best ritchers ever developed in college ball, McCollum and Lindburg. It is a real feat to beat these men. Several of the pleayers who are playing their last part from the summer.

Tech has been handicappd all week. This will be undoubtedly the best series of the year, and Tech needs to be in prime shape to win.

GEORGES CARPENTIER KAYOES LEWIS IN FIRST ROUND

Unfriendly Demonstration After Fight Was Over Laid to Lewis Followers

Frenchman Knocks Lewis Cold With His Famous Right-The Blow Traveled Only a Scant Six Inches.

Lewis Starts Fast.

London, May 11.—With a smashing right fist in a straight, swift blow right-hand punch on the jaw in the first round, Georges Carpentier, light heavyweight champion of the world, knocked out Ted Kid Lewis, his welterweight challenger, before a crowd of 12,000 people, in the Olympic arens.

The great crowd seemed to be stunned by the suddenness with which the bout ended, although the best informed sport experts had been reiterating for two weeks that Lewis, courageous and clever boxer, was simply no match for the big Frenchman, also one of the cleverest boxers in the world and the possessor of a proven knockout punch.

As the count progressed, however, with Lewis on his back the followers of Lewis in the big throng suddenly rebelled at what they though was Carpentier's unfair method of landing the knockout and the Frenchman, for the first time in all his long career before the British public, was booed and hissed as he left the ring for his dressing room accompanied by his manager, François Descamps.

But experienced amateur, and proand hissed as he left the ring for his dressing room accompanied by his manager, François Descamps.

But experienced amateur and professional boxers of standing agreed that the knockout blow was not delivered under foul conditions. The men had broken away clean, it was agreed, and Carpentier flashed in with his right on the very instant that the technical requirements of the clean break had been observed. Carpentier's right fist did not travel more than six inches.

The crowd objected to Carpentier's having struck Lewis after they parted from a clinch. Under the rules of boxing in Great Britain the breaks are clean, and Carpentier shot out his Lewis began the fight with a rush, apparently trying to sweep the Frenchman into a defensive position. But Carpentier locked Lewis' arms and the referee ordered them to break.

Lewis then sent a couple of light lefts to the face and then shot over his right. Carpentier did not appear to be bothered by the blows.

Lewis was working at top sneed that he would win but there seemed to be a general impression that he would carry the union jack safely through at least three or four rounds. When Ted Kid went down he carried with him the last hope of the British Isles for high position in the ranks of the heavier boxers. Joe Beckett, Bombardier Wells and George Cook all had gone down under the crashing blows of that famous right mitt of the Frenchman and there was a somewhat desperate hope that the returned son of Shoreditch who made his reputation, and won and lost the world's welterweight title in America, would outsmart the invader and either that he would win but there seemed to be bothered by the blows.

Lewis was working at top speed with the obvious object of moving too rapidly to be caught by Carpentier's deadly right. Again they clinched and the referee broke them, warning both fighters. Almost immediately they went into a third embrace and after this break the knockout plunked against Ted Kid's unprotected jaw flopping him cold on the canvas.

There was a demonstration against Carpentier unlike anything ever seen before in a British boxing exhibition attended, by so distinguished a gathering. Spectators swarmed about the would outsmart the invader and either outpoint him or by some miracle, fin-ish him in a 20-round fight. Lewis Outweighed.

Lewis weighed in below the weight of 175 pounds, stepping on the scales in his street clothes without budging the arm. Carpentier was just 175 pounds in his ring togs.

The official time of the fight was 2 minutes, 15 seconds.

Jack Demosey was at the ringside.

Jack Dempsey was at the ringside as a spectator. He was introduced to Prince Henry before the ring was cleared and the fighters were sent away on their brief career of clinching and clouting.

After the crowd had cooled off, the better element of London sportsmen who predomirated the throng, unanimously deplored the unfriendly demonstration which sped Carpentler from the amphitheater. Britons Poor Pugilistic Losers; BY FUZZY WOODRUFF

Georges Best Man of His Weight The quick and decisive defeat of rot win many friends for English Ted (Kid) Lewis made two things sports in this country. It was apparently a mucker demonstration.

Under the rules of boxing—the real things fistic. The first is that Britroles—a figh—r is supposed to protect himself at all times. A blow, coming out of a clinch, is just as was in again and Lewis was of again—for the first time since Jack Britton turned the trick. ons are mighty poor losers in matters pugilistic, and the second is that Georges Carpentier is probably the greatest pugilist of his poundage the world has ever known with the possible exception of the lamented Bob Both Carpentier and Lewis have appeared in Atlanta rings. Lewis is practical perfection as a boxer. In recent years he has added weight, and it is said, litting power. He was no set-up for any ordinary boxer weighing in at 175 pounds.

One punch from Carpentier finished him, just as one punch from Carpentier finished Cook and one punch from Carpentier finished Reck-

Carpentier finished Cook and one punch from Carpentier finished Beckett and one punch from Carpentier sent Jack Dempsey as close to draumland as the great heavyweight champion ever wants to be, or ever will be, until he is finally compelled to surrender his title.

Carpentier is probably as dangerous hitter with his right hand as Fitz-simmons was with his left, and that says a whole lot. Ten more pounds of weight behind that right hand would have won the title for the Frenchman at Boyle's Thirty Acres last summer. Anyone who saw the fight or the fight pictures mill recognize that as gospel truth.

Carpentier isn't as good a fighter as Dempsey—not by exactly ten rounds of avoirdunois, but despite his lack of poundage he is otherwise the greatest heavyweight in the world and is in all likelihood better number. There is splendid opportunity right at this time for some semi-windun and is in all likelihood better number.

There is splendid opportunity right at this time for some semi-windup boys to be getting some fair money and some fine publicity. The trouble is that all the semi-windup boys think they have windup ability.

A good many people who are not puglists have the same general failing.

A little door opening from behind the fireplace on to the cellar stairs, and thus avoiding the need to carry the wood through the kitchen and hallway and across the living room. A little while ago a small boy asked his father for a camera, and et with refusal on the plea that he was too young and would smash it. His birthday came at a time when his parents were traveling. In a letter to his parents the small boy said: "Uncle Jim is giving me a camera. Ha-ha! father!" In other words, he triumphed over his father. A serious crisis! What are we to do when our small boys say, "Ha-ha!"?

And they do say ha-ha! There is no stopping it. Though they be only six years old. It would be a pity to spoil the sprightly ir of the jacket by robbing it of its sash, the pirate's sash, as they call it, which is a companion to the pirate's cravat. The latter is loosely knotted under a wide collar of a blouse; the sash is loosely knotted between two loose box-pleats in front

The fabric of this suit is olive green, a suggestion that we may be persuaded to revive that rich and at-tractive tone known as Robin Hood green, which we once turned into suits and embellished with bands of brown or gray fur. Marjorie Is Suspicious.

Marjorie Langley took Diana aside after luncheon.

"See here, child, are you going back to the Bevan house party tonight or off on a honeymoon?"

"Oh the house party by all means," replied Diana hastily. "Alex's shore leave is up tomorrow and he isn't sure where he will be sent, so we'll have to postpone a honeymoon until he gets a new station."

It wasn't until she had uttered that sentence that Diana realized how relieved she was by the prospect of her young husband's departure.

"What a shame!" Surely he can get an extension of leave through his uncle, the admiral?"

"Oh, no, I—we—we'd rather not ask now and then perhaps he can get a long time off later and we can go abroad."

Diana found it difficult to avoid the gaze of Marjorie's dark eyes. The latter seemed to have uncanny intuition. Diana knew an agony of fear that her secret would be divined, but she managed a delighted giggle.

"The problem of the universe and why is anything."

"You funny child!" laughed Mar jorie. "You haven't any more right to be marred than a baby. Steve and I will have to keep an eye on you. Won't we, Steve?" she asked as they approached him.

And Betty did, quite of her own folition, enter that shelter. It was no mistake, no chance happening. Betty did not think he was her brother. "Oh, Joe! I was sure you would find us," she had said.

Joe did not overlook the confession Betty had made that there was a man

"The last I knew—just before we left the Grub Stake to look for you—Dick Beckworth gave every promise of getting on quite well."

"What—what does this man, Dick, look like?" asked Betty.

"Mildly dark. A beautiful, oiled mustache. I judge Dick Beckworth would be quite the gentleman in all appearance, and guite the devil at heart."

But I didn't hear all about it; so I didn't know Dick was alive. I—I'm mighty wicked, I reckon. I sin't glad he didn't die"—

"No need to go into that," urged Hunt quickly. "All such things are in the hands of Providence. But your mind, I hope, Nell, is relieved."

The Variometer.

Briefly, the variometer consists of two coils of wire connected in series, one of the coils being stationary and the other so mounted that it may be rotated. If current flows through both coils in the same direction, the magnetic fields, assist each other and the self-induction is at a maximum. If the inner coil is rotated so that the current flows through the coils in opposite directions the magnetic fields, oppose one another and the self-induction is at a maximum. The variometer, therefore, affords a continuous variation of inductance and close tuning within a comparatively small range of wave lengths.

In a simple form a receiver of this type may have a fixed primary winding and a secondary winding so constructed that it may be slipped in and out, of the primary winding, thus securing various degrees of "tight" or "loose" coupling. The number of turns used in the primary winding may be regulated by an adjustable slider while the secondary winding may be regulated by an adjustable slider while the secondary winding may have taps brought out to a multi-point switch. This adjustable receiving transformer in conjunction with a variable condenser, a reading of Robert W. Service's present settles of the orchestra are W. T. justable receiving transformer in conjunction with a variable condenser, detector, and receiving telephones forms a two-circuit receiver which gives very satisfactory results in the receipt of radio signals.

Rectification by the Crystal Detector.

If the series of damped radio-frequent oscillations are impressed upon a crystal detector, the rectifying properties of the crystal allow only the positive or negative currents to pass through, with the result that half of each cycle is wiped out and the incoming oscillations are rectified into a series of uni-directional pulsations. The average effect of each group of rectified oscillations impulses the diaphragm of the receiving telephones and results in the reception of audible signals.

The Thermionic Tube.

The thermionic tube consists of a small glass bulb from which the air has been exhausted. Supported in the vacuum are three elements, is the filament, grid, and plate. When the filament is properly heated and the plate is connected to a source of positive potential, the electrons given off by the filament flow toward the plate. The grid performs the valuable function of regulating the electron flow by means of potential control. Like the crystal detector, the tube has rectifying properties so that radio-frequent oscillations are converted into uni-directional pulsations. In addition to its property of detection, the tube possesses the ability to generate and amplify radio currents. In comparison with the crystal as a means of detection, the tube offers the distinct advantages of increased range, intensified signals and stability of adjustment.

Receiving Tuners—The "Honeycomb" Coil.

The "honeycomb" coil consists briefly of a multi-layer coil, in compact forms, so designed as to function with low energy losses. The mechanical arrangement of the windings is such that one layer crosses the preceding layer at an angle which reduces the losses, due to a capacity effect, to a minimum.

The coils are constructed in units with different numbers of furns and by proper selection of units the receiving set is easily adjusted to and by proper selection of units the receiving set is easily adjusted to long or short wave lengths.

These units may be utilized as the primary and secondary windings of the receiving transformer and an extremely flexible regenerative receiver may be developed by an additional coil connected in the plate circuit and located in inductive relation to the secondary winding.

Afternoon Stock Letter.

The market was subject to succeeding shaking spells almost all day, but in the afternoon the tone seemed to be a little better, or at least there appeared to be evidence of supporting orders, particularly in the steels. The independent steels are still under the influence of the merger, for the terms upon which the various companies are to go in are not yet public property and there is much speculation concerning the exact prices at which the common stocks will be appraised.

There is no doubt that the common stocks will be appraised. Centinued weakness today influenced considerable outside selling and added to the disquiet of those who have been making money so easily on the long side that they quite forget that the market could do anything but advance. Professional operators are well aware of this feeling and are trying to turn it to advantage. While we are not prepared to say hast the market is at its low, but we do not expect a prolonged reaction and she turn may well considered fraction and she turn may well considered reaction and she turn may well considered the end of the week.

Morning Steek Letter.

At close yesterday average of the industrials was 2½ below the high, which was touched a week 250. Measured by "epring reactions" in other years of advancing markets, thus far we have had only a small setback, and whether of significant importance or not, it is noticeable that the volume of trading continues to diminish. It appears to us as if individual operators, assuming that general buying powerlow, assuming that general buying powerlow, assuming that general buying powerlow, assuming that general buying powerlow for the deep of maintaining the selling position from filis time on.

It is difficult to find reasons for selling stocks in the news. The steel merger looks well on its way to completion. While mouse conference with the sail executives ought to have a constructive influence. A substantial lincrease in car loading in face of the coal str

Consolidation With Other

Large Companies Expected To Follow This Action

New York, May 11.—Merger of the Bethlehem and Lackawanna Steel companies, two of the largest independent steel corporations in the country, is announced by Moses Taylor, board chairman of the Lackawanna company, following a series of conferences between officials of the two concerns.

News of the merger, which became known just before the stock market closed, gave Wall street a real thrill. Lackawanna Steel made a net gain of 7 points, closing at 63 3-4. There were 73 sales, totaling 17,100 shares in the last hour, the largest sale of 1,400 shares being disposed of at 66, the top price and a new high record for the year. The previous high was 61. The day's sales were 22,600 shares.

There was less activity in Bethlehem Steel, which closed at 73, the top price and a net gain of 15.8 points. Of the day's trading of 11,000 shares, 4,700 were disposed of in the final hour. Shares of the Republic Iron and Steel company and the Midvale Steel company, the only stocks in addition to the Lackawanna, which were included in the proposed merger of seven independent steel companies and traded in on the big board, also showed substantial gains, Republic showing a net gain of 3 points and Midvale of 1 3-4.

Thomas L. Chadbourne, who has been handling the legal affairs in connection with the proposed merger of seven independent companies, declared that the withdrawal of the Lackawanna company would not cause an abandonment of the plans, which would be concluded on a six-company basis. In addition to the Republic and Midvale, these companies are the Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Brier Hill Steel company, Inland Steel company and the Steel and Tube Company of America.

Comes As Surprise.

Directors of the Bethlehem and Lackawanna companies will hold meetings in their respective offices next Tuesday to confirm the merger, which is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

On the same day the executives of the independent companies will meet with representatives of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, to arrange the financing of the independent merger, which will involve an exchange of securities and cash and the foundation of a new holding company or the enlargement of one of the existing companies.

Officials of the Bethlehem company, in a talk with newspaper men, declared that the Lackawanna purchase has absolutely no connection with the independent merger and he likewise denied the report that the

with the independent merger and he likewise denied the report that the Bethlehem corporation, after absorbing the Lackawanna, would unite with the others mentioned in the seven-company combination.

The Bethlehem company has been the chief rival of the United States Steel corporation. It came into prominence during the war when, under the leadership of Charles M. Schwab, it handled hundreds of millions of dollars in shell contracts. Its capitalization is $240,000,000, including the funded debt.

Lackawanna's Standing.

The Lackawanna company has a capitalization of $70,587,306, three-fifths of which is stock and the rest bonds. Its sales in 1920 totaled $70. 587,000. It controls more than 50. 587,000 tons of iron ore, 31,000 acres that would be possible under such large that would be possible under such large. of coal lands and rights in Pennsylvania, and a supply of limestone suffi-cient for thirty years' capacity oper-

In addition it owns a majority of stock in the Ellsworth Collieries company, whose coking coal resources are estimated at $4,000,000 tons.

The other six companies with which the gigantic merger is believed contemplated have a combined capacity of about $.000,000 tons of ingots and $.300,000 tons of firished steel annually.

After Making New Highs Average of Industrials Falls Below Recent Low

Constitution's New York Financial Correspondent.

New York, May 11.—More headway was made today by professional traders who are working for lower prices and predictions were freely made that lower prices would be witnessed. These predictions were made largely on the fact that the average for twenty industrial shares made a new high some three weeks ago at 93.08, declined to 91.18, advanced to a new high of 93.48, declined to 91.19, advanced to a new high of 93.80, declined to 91.35 and this morning broke through the lowest level made on these last three declines. The buying today was not impressive but the selling on all rallies was but the selling on all rallies was.

How far the decline now under way in the stock market goes probably depends on whether or not it is fought by the public. If the public with paper profits stubbornly refuses to sell, the chances are that the paper profits will eventually run into actual losses. One acceptable explanation for the recent advance which ran much farther than was genrally expected is that all the way up it was fought by professional

Call money opened today at 4 1-4 per cent, then dropped to 4 and then to 3 1-2 with funds offered freely at the lower rate named. The First National bank here, which is generally credited with having the best judgment on money and industrial conditions, today for the first time in many a long month offered six months' money as low as 4 1-2

Considerable concern was expressed through the financial district to a ruling handed down today by the New York public service commis-sion ordering the Brooklyn Union Gas company to cut its rate on gas from $1.25 a thousand feet to $1.15. However, it was subsequently learned that the company had been charging $1.35 in the Coney Island district awaiting a ruling from the commission, and that today's ruling only applied to the district.

Georgia's Melon Acreage Larger Than Ever; Plans For Shipments Completed

BY MARION KENDRICK

Organized effort to reduce Georgia's watermelon acreage has me with failure, acording to a bulletin issued Thursday by the United State bureau of markets and crop estimates, for the state with 57,800 acres in melons has exceded last year's record by 20,000 acres. The yield, however, will not show a decided increase over the production of 1921, reports from all sections indicating the condition of the crop as being

Through a campaign of organization in south and middle Georgia, the growers expect little trouble this summer in movement of the crop. Arrangements have been completed with railroad officials whereby a sufficient number of cars will be at the disposal of the growers through out the season. The watermelon associations also have arranged with the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural department to provide daily reports covering marketing centers. Through this service, the farmers will be in a position to make sales and shipments to markets offering best prices. In the past, congestion at several market cities has resulted in growers suffering large losses. Since last summer, the associations have stressed the importance since last summer, the associations have stressed the importance of reducing watermelon acreage in order that the quality of the melon raised might be improved. The bulletin of Thursday, however, prepared by Z. R. Pettet, agricultural statistician, and Dixon Merritt, assistant, asserts that with "an average yield, Georgia this season will produce enough commercial watermelons to put one in every home in the United States, leaving enough of the non-commercial kind to feed the homefolks, hogs and honey bees." The statisticians are of the opinion that despite preliminary plans for the season, the growers will experience difficulty in finding markets.

"The increase in acreage is accounted for not only by increased acreage in the old watermelon districts but by a tremendous expansion of the watermelon industry into new areas," the bulletin continues. "Formerly, the bulk of the watermelons were grown in an irregular belt running from Grady and Lowndes counties, on the Florida lines, to Jones and Baldwin, nearly in the center of the state, with a much smaller area in the southeast. This year, the watermelon area covers practically all of the state south and east of Atlanta. The exception is a strip of about one tier of counties along the Alabama line and a narrow strip along the coast. The most intensive increase in acreage is in the southwest district, but with the southern and eastern districts crowding it

"The yield, however, will probably not show so large an increase over last year as does the acreage. Reports received from all sections of the state indicate a condition of only 79 per cent of normal. The condition, however, is much higher in the old heavy producing districts. The southwestern district shows a condition of 90 per cent and the eastern a condition of 85 per cent. Everything considered, production will probably be decidedly larger than last year though not as much larger as the acreage would indicate. Still, the indications are that finding markets will be something of a problem.

In Other States. "Every other large producing watermelon state in the southern district has increased its acreage, though none so largely as Georgia. The United States department of agriculture makes the following forecast of acreage planted this year with acreage harvested last year." crop of them already matured and beginning to turn.

Cucumbers by the quantity are going out from here every day, many acres of them having been planted by the truck gardeners near town. In the Ochlocknese and Meigs section there are a hundred and seventy acres in bearing and Boston and Pavo both report large crops. Hundreds of crates of beans and cabbage in carload lots are being shipped regularly and Thomas county is helping to supply the markets with vegetables. Thousands of crates of sweet potatoes are also being shipped, the method nog being used of keeping these potatoes during the winter months making them all the more valuable for shipment now.

MOULTRIE AND ADEL TO BE MARKET CENTERS.

Moultrie, Ga., May 11.—(Special.)

Moultrie and Adel will be the centers of activity in the south Georgia melon belt during the coming shipping season. The offices of the Southwest Georgia Waterpaelon Growers' association will be located at the latter place, while nearly all of the big buyers who are connected with the National Melon Growers' association will have headquarters in Moultrie. For a number of years they have been holding forth at Thomas asville, but in view of the fact that the Moultrie territory is the biggest melon shipping section in the country, the buyers will have their headquarters here this season.

The United States bureau of market will also open an office in the city during the melon season. This office will move from Ocala, Fla,, at the close of the Florida season. It sends out daily reports as to weather conditions, the movement of melons and market quotations on the various sizes.

Notwithstanding the excellent song numbers offered, the buck dancing as well as a difficult toe dance, proved the most popular numbers with Thursday night's audience.

Fred Grey and Jean Carpenter have a very amusing musical farce called "The Bell Boy," that scores as one of the hits of the bill. Both Mr. Grey and Miss Carpenter are accomplished performers on brass instruments and play them all from the saxophone to the French horn.

Other acts are Carl and Inez, in a comedy farce skit, "A Doorstep Romeo," Jack Reddy in character studies, and Russell and Hayes in acrobatic capers.

He told her (Theodora, played by Miss Swanson) what would be, would be and mortals like himself and herself were just scattered leaves, like barques floating down a current where were mostly rocks ahead. Then must we strike the rocks whether we wish it or no?" asked Theodoro. Can not moterate were mostly rocks ahead. Then must we strike the rocks whether we wish it or no?" asked Theodoro. Can not madam! For that, he said, 'we can strive a little and avoid this one and that, but if it is our fate we will crash against them in the end."

"What a sad philosophy!" said Theodora. I would rather believe that if one does one's best, some kind angel will guide one's best, some kind angel will guide one's barque past the rocks and safely into the smooth waters of the pool beyond."

City Club Report.

The following report of the legislative committee of the City club, of Atlanta, was made public Thursday:

To the board of governors, City club, of Atlanta:

"Your committee on legislation submits the following report on the Atlanta city charter question:

"I. Your committee unanimously favors complete revision of the city charter of Atlanta, and emphatically oppose the old charter with its proposed amendments.

"2. Your committee finds that in the campaign how being carried on before the people of Atlanta, the groups representing the three proposed charters have in many respects lost sight of the main issue, which is the welfare of Atlanta, and are indulting in personalities and recriminations which are in no way pertinent to the question, tending to draw attention from the main question and divide our people into sections and clusses.

"3. Your committee finds the fel-girls and one young man inal creations, and a story of intense diately dropped for the good of At-a lot of good music and compelling interest.

diately dropped for the good of Atlanta.

"4 Mayor Key has every right to advocate the charter of his choice, without question, and whether he intends to seek office again or not, is not a matter for debate at this time.

"B. The rights of the people with relation to public utilities are amply protected under all three charters. Rates for service cannot be regulated under any of the plans, and there is no possibility of lower rates except by action of the state railroad commission. If there should be a misuse of influence by the utilities, the two progressive charters offer equal safeguards because of the small legislative bodies and the equally definite responsibility attached to them. The utilities are therefore not parties to this issue. Tonight again at the Vaudette theater will be the regular amateur contest, and the management announces several good amateurs will appear, and as an added attraction he will again have Ab Dalla, known as the Instrumental Man, in sonjunction with the best musical comiedy and vaudeville this season, "The Springtime Foilies," Buck Jones in a feature photoplay, and a good comedy. Amateur contest goes on after the 7:10 vaudeville.

utilities are therefore not parties to this issue.

"C. The statement that the ciyt manager plan is an experiment in government and that it has not been tried in cities of Atlanta's class is not correct. Its record stands for twelve years without a single failure. Akron. Grand Rapids, Dayton, and Norfolk, all cities of Atlanta's class as to metropolitan population and industrial importance, are operated on the city manager plan successfully.

Statement Challenged.

"D. The statement that the pres-

Band concerts and a splendid display of fireworks will conclude the festivities of the first day.

Big Float Parade.
On Tuesday the Atlanta Automobile club will stage a beautiful decorated and float parade, which will begin at 8:30 in the morning, so that it may be finished by 10 o'clock. A number of bands will assist in this parade.

Promptly at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon on Tuesday, Cheyenne Kiser and his wild cowboys, cowgirls, wild steers, wild horses, etc., will give their first performance, consisting of a real western rodeo roundup. This exhibition is not a wild west show, but is a realistic representation of the fun and fricks of the cowboys—thrilling and exciting to the highest degree. This me hour each afternoon during the week. Band concerts will help to liven up the afternoon entertainments each dsy.

At 8 o'clock the popular comic opera, "Mikado," will be given under the auspices of the Atlanta Musical Festival association.

where a citizen of Atlanta lives, and your committee deplores the raising of any sectional or divisional issues.

"I. The statement that the present employees of the city will lose their places under the progressive charters is unwarranted. Both of these charters provides greater protection to competent employees than the present system."

"Your committee commends the the press of the city in pointing out the differences and advantages of the three charters in parallel columns; it

Thursday morning's parade will be composed of a large number of secret orders, civic and social organizations. The rodeo will take up the entire afternoon. In the evening there will be a Venetian water carnival, directed and arranged by the Lions club. One hundred gondolas, and more than four hundred people will be in this event. Beautiful Italian folk songs, Neopolitan songs, with appropriate music, all with a true Venetian background and setting, will make this one of the most beautiful attractions of the week. Under the supervision of the Civitan club a dance festival will feature this evening's program. This event will depict the evolution of the dance, including numbers in solo, duo, trio and groups, presenting the various stages of the dance from the early Egyptian times through the ages up to modern days. Friday morning will usher in another spectacular parade, followed in the afternoon by the rodeo, and in Boy Disappears Leaving Coat And Hat Behind

Police and city detectives were en-listed Friday night in a search for Gus Gartrell, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gartrell, of 176 and Mrs. A. B. Gartrell, of 176 Park street, who mysteriously disappeared about 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the basement of the Healey building, where he was engaged in clerical work for the American Oil company.

When the young man failed to return at 5:30 o'clock, the time of the closing of the office, his absence was immediately investigated. The basement of the building was then immediately investigated. The basement of the building was then searched, his hat and coat being dissearched, his hat and coat being discovered.

The search was extended until after midnight, police working on the theory that young Gartrell had met with foul play. He had not been located at an early hour Friday morning.

"QUALITY STREET." HIGH SCHOOL PLAY, READY FOR STAGE

A complete dress rehearsal of "Quality Street," the Girls' High school senior play for 1922, was held Thursday afternoon at Commercial High school auditorium, under the direction of Miss Annabelle Horn, dramatic instructor.

The play, from the gifted pen of Barrie, will be presented Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening at Egleston hall. Tickets are finding a ready sale, the students report. Proceeds will be used in defraying expenses incidental to the approaching commencement exercises.

Miss Jessie Muse, principal of Girls' High school, was an interested spectator at the rehearsal. She expressed much satisfaction at the progress made by the cast. All characters are played by senist students. Even the male roles are portrayed by girls.

fifth ward, and the Battle Hill school in the seventh ward. Councilman Ashley, T. S. Skipper, and W. A. Sims will address the fifth ward voters, while Councilman Wood will speak to the seventh ward citizens. The Watkins forces will hold a big rally at 8 o'clock at the Church of the Epiphany, corner Moreland and Buclid avenues. Councilman Russell, Mrs. T. R. Kendal and others will speak.

Will Peters, a negro, charged with assault with intent to murder, was removed from Grady hospital Thursday night to the Fulton tower by Sheriff J. R. Lowry, following the receipt of a telegram from Judge Blanton Fortson, of Oconee county, instructing the sheriff to guard the prisoner and refrain from turning him over to any officers from that county until further notice from him.

Peters was arrested May 6 by Oconee county officers following a shooting affair in his home in which Mather Stinchcomb and Gay Thurman, white men, were seriously wounded and the negro shot in the abdomen. Peters claims the two men came to his home and immediately began shooting at him. After he was shot in the abdomen he declares he obtained his revolver and began shooting at the two, who claimed to have gone to the negro's home to arrest him on a charge of chicken stenling.

They will be announced at the December convention in New York.

Many delegates will leave Atlanta Triday for a visit to the steel mills of Birmingham and the Muscle Shoals power development. Much interest in the project was aroused Thursday when C. C. Says Philic is Misled.

"It is a source of considerable regret to engineers who are familiar with the Tennessee river to read in the press of the enormous power allotted to the Muscle Shoals development, usually stated as 1,000,000 horse power, and the consequent misleading of the general public on the much-discussed project," said Mr. Adsit.

much-discussed project," said Mr. Adsit.

"Muscle Shoals is a distinctly runof-river proposition as no storage is created by the dam except that required to control the daily flow of the river," he continued.

"The greatest fluctuation of any stream in the southeast probably occurs in the Tennessee river. The United States government in planuling a development at Muscle Shoals recognized this fact and contemplated an installation of 400,000 kilowatts, only a portion of which can be depended upon for continuous power. According to hydrographs of the river at this point, the amount of strictly primary power at Muscle Shoals averages about 100,000 horse power, and even this figure is based upon the assistance of some steam capacity that must be maintained.

"The development has distinctly a stream-flow characteristic, the discharge of the river varying widely from month to month and more markedly from year to year. The contemplated capacity of 400,000 kilowatts at Muscle Shoals could be operated at full load only at widely separated intervals, since the giver flow

Both occupy space that is measured in inches instead of yards, yet they are true to life in every detail. Mr. Odum believes the home show is one of the best boosts ever given here to landscape art of individual estates and city homes. It was made by Sargent Hamilton, local architect, of paper, plaster and sponge, which is added proof, Mr. Hamilton says, that Atlanta can produce anything. Ar exhibit that has attracted great attention is the dehydration booth, where the apparatus and products of the Georgia Dehydration company are on display. The process of removing the water from fresh fruits and vegetables, so they can be kept for many months, or even years, and restored to perfect freshness and flavor through simply adding water, is remarkably demonstrated. As explained by the exhibitors, the method is available for every home and proves an inexpensive and practical way to cut the high cost of living. The company, co-operating with Georgia farmers, has made arrangements to buy up the dehydrated crops of every farmer who purchases an Gutfit.

A remarkable array of photographs, showing the interior plans of the new Capital City market, now under construction on the site of the governor's mansion, is on exhibition in the booth of the Capital City Building and Market company. The nictures depict what will be one of the most modern co-operative markets ever located in the south.
